Striking upon a sandbank, boats were lowered, and the whole company were saved with the exception of six men, who were drowned by the capsizing of a boat. The U.S. ship Vandalia was carried before the gale right upon the reef. She struck with a terrible shock, hurling Captain Schoonmaker against a Gatling gun. Before he could recover a great wave swept the deck, and he was washed away with others into the sea. Soon after the Vandalia had sunk, the American war-ship Trenton broke from her anchorage and was driven upon the wreck of the Vandalia, whence she drifted to the shore. The bottom of the Trenton was completely stove At this time night had set in. tives and Europeans had gathered on the shore, but, owing to the darkness, they were unable to be of service. As morning broke, the German man-of-war Olga, which had hitherto withstood the gale, became unmanageable, and was driven upon the beach, where she lay in a tolerably fair position.
